PREFACE

In 2003 a lot of internal discussions took place to prepare for the new round of re-accreditation of CERES by the Evaluation Committee Research Schools (ECOS) of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Arts and Sciences (KNAW), based on the international review committee's report of 2001 and its follow up. The request for re-accreditation was submitted in December 2003, and in June 2004 CERES heard the good news that the request was granted, with a very positive letter of evaluation of the accomplishments of the Research School. The CERES Board and Directorate would like to use this opportunity again to thank the three members of the CERES Bureau, Agniet Cools, Lolita van Toledo and Caroline Muilwijk, and all CERES members who have contributed to this good result. We also like to thank Utrecht University and its Faculty of Social Sciences for hosting this process, and guiding it to its positive result.

In 2003 the leadership of CERES consisted of the Board, chaired by Prof. Hans Opschoor, and the Directorate, headed by Prof. Ton Dietz as scientific director and Mr Ab van Eldijk as vice-director. In the Board Prof. Opschoor also represented ISS, while Prof. dr Isa Baud represented the University of Amsterdam, Prof. dr Otto Verkoren Utrecht University, Prof. dr Paul Richards Wageningen University and Research Centre, Prof. dr Wim Koot and later Dr Heidi Dahles the Free University Amsterdam, and Prof. dr Henk Driessen the Catholic University of Nijmegen. Drs Rob van den Bergh (DGIS-IOB) represented the relevant professional environment of CERES. Two PhD representatives, Gerhard Anders and Nicole Stuckenberger were also part of the Board. They took a lot of initiatives to give PhD members a more prominent place in CERES's structure. At their initiative it was also decided to have an Annual Meeting, starting in 2004 during the CERES summer school, to enable our many associated institutional members, and all CERES individual members, seniors and juniors, to contribute to strategic discussions.

In the CERES directorate Dr Johan Post represented the University of Amsterdam (with a special responsibility in 2003 for the organisation of the CERES summer school), Dr Wil Hout the Institute of Social Studies, Dr Wil Pansters Utrecht University, Prof. dr Leontine Visser Wageningen University and Research Centre, Dr Ton Salman the Free University of Amsterdam, and Prof. dr Leo de Haan the Catholic University of Nijmegen.

The basic CERES architecture remained the same, with eight CERES working programmes, with chairs, convenors, and PhD representatives, and with a well-established PhD training programme, co-ordinated by Drs Lolita van Toledo, and by directorate members Prof. Leo de Haan and Dr Johan Post. During 2003 six 'pathway' groups around crucial concepts continued their activities, organised a think-tank day in April, contributed extensively to the CERES summer school in June, and prepared a book text, that would be finalised and published in 2004. Dr Wil Pansters was the link of this process with the CERES directorate. During 2003 the directorate had discussions with all 'CERES-location' groups (and with deans, as part of the process of re-accreditation), with most of the leadership of associated institutes, and with all chairs/convenors of working programmes. New guarantees were received for the next six years from all relevant partners. New associated members were integrated in CERES as well: the Royal Tropical Institute in Amsterdam and the Institute of Migration and Ethnic Studies of the University of Amsterdam.

In 2003 CERES prepared new membership arrangements, in which a new category of 'affiliated members' could join, on the one hand scientists from other national or local (graduate) research schools, on the other hand practitioners in fields related to CERES. For regular members new, more precise, norms were formulated for quality and quantity assessment of scientific work, using the improved CERES valuation system of publication accreditation (see <http://ceres.fss.uu.nl>, under rating list) . For post-docs more realistic norms were part of the new valuation framework. CERES decided to form a Publications Accreditation Committee, chaired by Dr Wil Hout. CERES and EADI (the European Association of Development Institutes) have decided to work together to develop this valuation system as a shared tool. The valuation system was used to compare CERES' performance between 1994-98 with 1999-2002, for the re-accreditation process. It showed an impressive improvement of CERES' performance, and of all its working programmes and locations. A citation analysis confirmed the impression of successful scientific impact of CERES' leading scholars.

For 2003 the 'honorary gallery' of A-level publications (using the CERES valuation framework) contains the following products, with congratulations:

The research training programme took place as planned, with many participants, the majority of whom came from abroad. With the usual highlight in Hilversum (the presentation tutorials) it was a success. The CERES summer school, organised by the University of Amsterdam (AGIDS), the Free University Amsterdam, and the Royal Tropical Institute, was a major success as well. It took place from 23-26 June, at the Royal Tropical Institute (new associated member of CERES), as "Faces of Poverty. Capabilities, mobilization, and institutional transformation". Key note speakers were Mrs Agnes van Ardenne, Minister of Development Co-operation of the Netherlands, Dr Piya Chatterjee of the University of California, Mr Simon Maxwell, of the Overseas Development Institute in London, Prof. dr Jan Willem Gunning of the Free University Amsterdam, Prof. Carole Rakodi of the University of Birmingham, Prof. Stefan Vertovec of the University of Oxford, and Dr Don Kalb of CERES/UU. Thirty-six papers were presented (and published in a Proceedings book, that was ready in advance), by CERES members, and Dutch and international guests, under the umbrellas of five of the six CERES-pathways themes (livelihood, governance, globalisation, identity, and transnationality). Thanks Johan Post, Isa Baud, Ton Salman, Bart de Steenhuijsen Piters, and Gert van der Meer for your organisational abilities, and your professional enthusiasm. The Summer school was preceded by the Inaugural lecture of the School's scientific director, at Utrecht University, on 23d June ("The Global Social Problem. Challenges for a research school like CERES", see <http://ceres.fss.uu.nl>, under publications).

A few new training initiatives were added, e.g. a digital video course, and a course on dissemination of research findings. Also CERES became very much involved in the PhD training programme of SANPAD's Resource Capacity Initiative in South Africa.

CERES has stimulated the development of relevant research masters initiatives (e.g. in Amsterdam, Nijmegen and Utrecht-REBO), and a course design in these research masters programmes, in which CERES-broad elements, as well as participation in each others specific modules, will be integrated.

Another new arrangement was that recent PhD alumni could ask for a formal CERES certificate, with information about their training, publications, and other relevant data. In June CERES celebrated its 200th PhD defence after the start of the School in 1994: Dr Gerben Nooteboom at the Catholic University of Nijmegen. A small booklet was published for the occasion, with information about all 200 PhD topics, and a bit of analysis.

Following CERES' participation in a symposium "Challenging Dutch Aid: from Practice to Policy (December 15, at ISS), preparations took place to start a Netherlands Development Policy Review Network, hosted by CERES, with Drs Rob van den Bergh as chair, and dr Paul Hoebink as secretary. CERES tries to stimulate better and more intellectually challenging relationships with practitioners working in fields like 'development', 'international relations', 'multiculturality', and 'governance'. CERES acquired a research contract from DGIS for Phase II of the Thematic Evaluations Exercise for Area Development, Natural Resources Management, Agricultural Research and Water Management (co-ordinated by Dr Han van Dijk).

CERES is on the right track!

RESEARCH

In 2003 The Institute for Migration and Ethnic Studies, an interdisciplinary research institute of the University of Amsterdam, has become a full member of our research school. This development has strengthened the scientific expertise base for research initiatives focussing on multiculturalism, conflict and migration. New linkages also reinforce this focus in the CERES research programme with the Centre for Conflict studies in Utrecht and the UNESCO programme on Management of Social Transformations (MOST).

The new research configuration that is emerging from these developments spans the boundaries of various working programmes and is initiated as temporary network format that leaves ample room for additional initiatives that are being developed with our national and international partners.

Two other new research initiatives have induced shifts in the research architecture of CERES.

With the formation of the "ISS" Centre for the Study of Transformation and Development (CESTRAD) a new platform is created for the policy analysis of transformation processes. Since the formation of this unit is based on the participation in a European expertise network this development is also strengthening of the overall CERES internationalisation policy to intensify the collaboration – in both research and training - with our scientific partner institutions in Europe. The increased attention for transformation processes in Eastern Europe supports the ongoing shift in the regional focus of CERES research.

Similar developments are taking place in the study field of natural resource management. Where research on maritime resource management is concerned the formation of the Mare Institute has induced new European research initiatives strengthening linkages between natural science research agenda's and social science approaches of resource management.

The initiative to focus the CERES internationalisation policy more on the strengthening of cooperation with European partners is based on and tuned to the emerging European infrastructure for research and research training. Also the CERES valuation system for scientific performance that was started this year is now becoming an important element in the cooperation with European partner institutions with which we are discussing on joint initiatives in research and training. In the preparation of the KNAW reaccreditation procedure it was decided not to consider changes in the general structure of the CERES research architecture to avoid unnecessary difficulties for the evaluation of CERES performance.

The six so called Pathways project groups on Globalization, Livelihood, Identity Formation, Governance, Transnationalism and Knowledge in Development - started last year on the basis of the "In search of Common Ground" report continued their activities this year. In line with one of the main recommendations in the report of the International Advisory Committee the CERES Directorate has decided that "the promising potential for new connections between CERES members who belong to different working programmes" should be facilitated and new boundary spanning ad hoc project groups like the for mentioned Pathways groups, will be started every year. After accreditation in 2004 adjustments in the existing structure of the CERES research programme will be considered to accommodate the new research foci stemming from initiatives with local members, research partners abroad and international organizations. Both national and international policy developments on research and research training support the continued efforts within our (national) Research School to strengthen the involvement of programme units in the organization of training facilities for our PhD candidates like research seminars, master classes, advanced courses and mini conferences. Next year a further twinning of research programming and research training will become an important new objective in the organization of CERES research, since only an appropriate twinning of research programming and training can provide the necessary quality basis for an international accreditation of our national Research School.

CERES Summerschool

The 2003 CERES Summerschool 'Faces of Poverty: capabilities, mobilization and institutional transformation', was held in Amsterdam from 23-26 June. CERES researchers and PhD's as well as well-known researchers from abroad participated actively in the programme, many of them were speakers in the programme.

keynote speakers were:

Mrs. Agnes van Aardenne (Minister of Development Cooperation, the Netherlands), dr. Piya Chatterjee, University of California), prof. Jan Willem Gunning (VU), dr. Don Kalb (UU/CERES), Simon Maxwell (Overseas development Institute, London), prof. Carole Rakodi (University of Birmingham), prof. Stefan Vertovec (University of Oxford).

2. Pre-fieldwork intensive courses, (100-200 hours)

The following courses were available:

- In cooperation with CNWS: A practical course on the methodology of fieldwork (KUN)
- Research methodology workshop (ISS)

3. Post-fieldwork activities, workshops and seminars organized by CERES working programmes. Candidates were advised to actively participate in these research meetings to generate support/comments of CERES staff researchers on concept articles, draft chapters, etc. The CERES directorate is responsible for the so-called "cohort-days".

4. Optional modules and/or tutorials (offered by CERES, the participating institutions or other institutions), chosen in accordance with the individual candidate's specific requirements and experience, agreed in consultation with the supervisor, the day-to-day tutors and the research school management, and specified in the training and supervision plan.

General skills

Candidates could opt for various general training facilities open to CERES participants. The focus is on the training of both oral and writing skills at a scientific level (for example: presentation and preparation of papers; writing a research application; writing scientific texts; writing academic English).

Supervision

The supervision entails the individual supervision by the promoter and field specialist divided into 100 contact hours per year (i.e. two hours per week for 50 weeks, total 400 hours).
